In the northwestern part of the district, a number of lead and silver prospects, some of them very promising, are being developed. It is believed that manganese will be found in this section of the camp. If it is discovered it will give Grand Encampment's silver and lead ores the same favorable market that cobait gives to Grand Encampment copper. So far, copper, cobait and gold have made the camp its reputation. There is every prospect, however, tion. A station has been cut at this point, a steam heist installed and within 40 or 50 feet it is expected to cut the pay ore chute on its dip, and the indications are most flattering for the uncovering of a spiradid body of high grade mineral with greater depth. The officers of the company are highly pleased over the outlook for the property.

The several petitions and complaints were disposed either by reference or favorably according to the merits disclosed in each respective case. GROUND FOR MRS. BARHYDT'S APPLICATION FOR DIVORCE.

Trial of the Morris Bribery Case Continued For the Term On Application of the Defendant's Counsel-Young Joseph Burroughs Has Reformed-Miscellaneous Notes.

Yesterday was an uninteresting day in the trial of the Ogden water case. The defendants called and examined C. J. Carey and H. T. Snyder, both members parcial ingenuously says, would be worth capturing, as those in the Medit-erranean alone at the present time rep-resent the value of many millions. Specially singled out are the Valiant, Margarita, Sulfana, Nahama and Arcof the city council at the time the con-tract to lease and transfer the water-works to Bothwell was entered into. tract to lease and transfer the waterworks to Bothwell was entered into.

They testified that the water supply in 1883 and 1899 was insufficient for the de1883 and 1899 was insufficient for the de1883 and 1899 was sample in all cases, They were of the opinion, however, that the city could have so repaired and improved the old system that it would have served for a time at least. Under crossexamination they said that a few months prior to the making of the Hothwell contract they reported to the city council recommending that the city borrow $40,000 or $50,000 to be used in extending the old system. During the Loan & Trust company building fire the water gave out.

J. E. Coolidge, street supervisor, said the old pipes were fairly good, but the supply of water was insufficient, the old reservoir was foul and leaky.

Colonel Stephenson, the hydraulic and mining engineer, said that in the summer of 1889 he was engaged by Ogden City to make expert examinations respecting its proposed change from one water system to another. Witness at that time#found the city derived, its water supply from Ogden river, Strong's canyon and Water Falls curyon. The amount derived from the first named source was $56,44 gallons per 24 hours.

The defense offered certain minutes of the city council of Ogden of June 22, 1888, but it was objected to and the objection sustained.

E. H. Anderson, city recorder of Ogden, identified certain records of the city council and testified to the correctness of a resolution of the council ordering the waterworks company to put in 77 new hydrants, and recommending that the pressure be maintained at about 100 pounds to the square inch. The council prior to the construction of the new system, made an order directing that when a fire occurred the water be shut off from other places in order to give enough pressure to extinguish the fire. The council also passed a resolution directing that the cost of building a new system be ascertained.

In 1892 the assessed valuation of the system was $183,000.
F. Higginbotham, jr., deputy recorder, testified that in 1892 the system was assessed at $189,000; in 1893 at $175,000; in 1894 at $157,500; in 1895 at $157,500; and in 1896 at $200,000.

THE MORRIS CASE.

Continued For the Term On Application of Defendant.

The trial of the case against Joseph R. Morris, on the charge of agreeing to accept a bribe in the matter of the county furniture deal, which was set for April 29, was yesterday continued for the term. The defense requested the continuance and the prosecution agreed to it.

Joseph Has Reformed.

Joseph Burroughs, a boy of 13, who was brought before Judge Norrell a month or two ago with a view of his being com-mitted to the reform school for truancy and general incorrigibility, but was let go on a promise to do better, was brought up again yesterday on application to dismiss the charge, it appearing that the boy was really doing better and striving to behave himself properly. Principal McKay of the Lowell school and Miss Chalwick, one of the teachers, both bore testimony to that effect.

Judge Norrall said he would continue the case until May 28 and that then if it appeared that Joseph persevered in well-doing, the charge would be dismissed.
